Dear Sir:

Thank you for your letter of Sept. 19 requesting material on the Misses Susan Hayward and Jean Peters.

I enclose biographies on both of these ladies which give most of the material you probably need.

To bring you up to date, here is some additional information not included in the biographies.

JEAN PETERS, during 1952, has a starring role in the big 20th Century-Fox Technicolor production, "Lure Of The Wilderness," with Jeffrey Hunter and Constance Smith. She also has an important role in "O. Henry's Full House," a quintet of O. Henry short stories. She is currently co-starring with Richard Widmark in "Blaze of Glory," which will be released next year.

SUSAN HAYWARD is co-starred with Gregory Peck and Ava Gardner in the big 20th Century-Fox Technicolor production, "The Snows Of Kilimanjaro." This is one of our most important pictures in years. It is based on an Ernest Hemingway short story, is personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, with Henry King as director. Miss Hayward is currently co-starring with Charlton Heston in "The President's Lady," based on the love story of Andrew Jackson, an early American president, and his wife.

I hope this information will be of help to you.

Sincerely yours,

ROY CRAFT
