

Cosmic rays are protons of very high energy penetrating into our atmosphere and coming from the outer space.
Mixed with them there are also some high-speed electrons and possibly also singly charged helium atoms. The protons produce other subatomic particles (mesons) in the atmosphere which are extremely penetrating.

Victor F. Hess.