

Dear Signor Basave

Your welcome letter just to hand. I had been intending to write, now that the late disturbances have more or less jelled out. (1st) About a Genoese friend, a fellow citizen of Istiti Levante, to whom I gave English lessons in Genova (1919-20). I have sent him a letter of introduction which in due course of time I conclude he will forward by on from New York which he reached from Italy some 6 months ago.

Naturally the crude Calabro ^{Civilization!!} is not much in harmony with an educated North Italian & I suggest in attempting to find a position somewhere in Mexico preferably Guadalajara where he would be much happier. I gather he followed a sweet heart to the States & presently he contemplates matrimony.

(2) The other thing is to ask if the printing establishment of the Informadone or any other in Guadalajara would be capable of printing works in English. Owing to the fanatical malignity of the detestable English & their government the Labour Imperial humbugs appear to be improving on their predecessors. My London publisher cannot get proofs, copies of my works & through the Post. They are all stolen by the General P.O in London notorious now for its servility to any Government in Power & its zeal in tampering to order with the correspondence of the public.

The detestable murder of Dr. Pillay by English politicians appears to me an almost mathematical certainty. The family however, still cherish vain hopes. I have had 3 letters from the widow, one or two from the father in law and two from the late D. P. Pelay's younger brother p: Kuala Lumpur (Malay Peninsula) sent to the family to try and trace the murderer mycologist. I hope you will if possible give publicity to this thoroughly Anglo Saxon crime as far as possible in the Mexican Republic. I note the michin maledio members of the labourite cabinet are refusing to recognise Mexico.

With kind regards yours ever

W. W. Thickland
