Dear Sir!

Mr. H. E. D. Pollock, the author of "Round Structures of Aboriginal Middle America" has sent me his book, published by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

He gave me the advice to write to you, as you have published several papers over this most interesting matter. I should be very glad to know more about it with the help of your publications.

But I must confess that I could only read them in English or French and that I cannot charge a nephew of mine, a student in Berkeley with too much expenses for me.

But perhaps it might be possible to send me in the first line something about round towers at the coast in the north of Vera Cruz.

I should be thankful for the least indications.

Yours faithfully
Julia Müller
