*"From quiet homes and first beginning,
Out to the undiscovered ends,
There's nothing worth the wear of winning
But laughter and the love of friends."*

—Hilaire Belloc.

TO HILAIRE BELLOC.

*"You come, all shouting with the South West wind,
Bringing the Channel with you; spray and foam;
Laughter; the scent of rain and other kind,
And oh, you bring the darling Hills of Home.
I close my eyes, I see the Pyrenees,
And the dark unmatched green of Slindon trees."
—Percy Naldrett.*

To Hilaire Belloc on his 72nd Birthday.
Tributes by various Writers. Sheed & Ward.

It is not claimed that the foregoing list is complete or accurate as the volume of Mr. Belloc's work is enormous and the variety of subjects endless. To those approaching the author's work for the first time we recommend his famous book of travel, "The Path to Rome," following with "Hills and the Sea," and "The Four Men." From this beginning the reader will then find that anything on whatever subject, politics, history or satire, written by Mr. Belloc will be read with ever-increasing appreciation and pleasure.

Correction: "Tactics of Duke of Marlborough," on previous page,
Published by Arrowsmith, not Constable.
